
Different by Distinction
The Key 99

Mission and Values

The University of Dubuque is a small, private university affiliated with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) offering undergraduate, graduate, and theological seminary programs. The University is comprised of individuals from the region, the nation, and the world.

As a community, the University practices its Christian faith by educating students and pursuing excellence in scholarship. Therefore, the Universityof Dubuque is committed to:

- The Presbyterian tradition;
- Excellence in academic inquiry and professional preparation;
- Relationships which encourage intellectual, spiritual, and moral development;
- Community where diversity is appreciated and Christian love is practiced;
- Stewardship of all God's human and natural resources;
- Zeal for life-long learning and service.

Different By Distinction

"Life must be lived moment by moment. Each moment carries a message, a lesson for us."

-Dr. David Reynolds

The 1998-99 Yearbook Staff hopes that you enjoy the memories placed in this yearbook. The theme, "Different By Distinction," was chosen because as individuals,we make decisions that make us who we are and become in the future. As you look back now and in the years to come, we hope you remember the fun times in college and appreciate all the moments you had at the University of Dubuque.

Go Greek!

By: Rachel Keating and Kathy Belden
Under The Belltower Volume 9 Issue 2

Imagine yourself, in a new place, without your friends or family. You are living in a room about the size of your previous bathroom and you have to share it with another person that you have never seen before. The people that you have lived with, and shared everything with at high school the past four years are no longer down the street, but hundreds of miles away. These first few weeks at school you feel very alone and isolated from everyone. Your phone bill can prove that you like your parents a lot more than you thought.

How are you ever going to adjust to your new surroundings and form the type of friendships that you could always count on, but had to leave behind?

Now is the time to look at the Greeks on campus. Get to know the organizations and meet them at the informals that they will be hosting this fall. If you like what you see--Go Greek!! It could be the best thing you ever did.

It's Open and Running

By: Agnes Kress and Elizabeth Kuhne

Under The Belltower Volume 9 Issue 1

Just two years ago this exact month, ground was broken for the building of a new tech center here at UD. In that exact spot, there is a new building with state of the art technology! This building is called The Jackaline Baldwin Dunlap Technology Center. It officially took on this name at the Dedication Ceremony on September 17, 1998. A blue ribbon that decorated the outside of the foors was cut and sent UD into the next frontier.

This building, commonly referred to as the Tech Center, was named after Mrs. Dunlap, an alum and board member, becuase of her enormous contributions to its development.

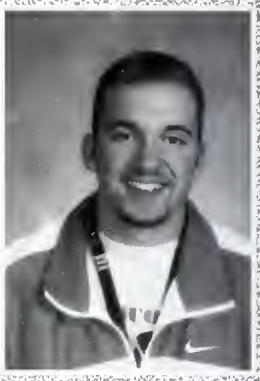

In honor of this occasion, the Mayor of Dubuque, Mr. Terry Duggan and the Governor of Iowa, Terry Branstad, were guest speakers thanking Mrs. Dunlap, and congratulating UD for taking a big step into the future of this school, and the community. Governor Branstad stated that this new center would make a real difference in our education and communication. He believes that with Iowa Communications Network (ICN). Iowa is a leader in technolgy. Governor Branstad's message was important and special, because it came to Dubuque via ICN from Des Moines. This was the first time our ICN rooms were used. And what a show it was!

Only a few people were in our ICN room. Others watched from the Hadley Auditorium. President Bullock and Laura Grandgenett gave the Dedication presentation. Grandgenett gave a Power Point presentation on the big screen and introduced some of the technological gizmos that are now available for our use. Such items as a document camera and access to cable channels on the wide screen (Dr. Bullock wants to sell Super Bowl tickets and make popcorn!) A drawing mechanism was also introduced, which allowed drawing in the dry erase board to be duplicated on the computer, and then duplicated on the big screen.

Grandgenett stated that we should be making investments in technology. She believes it changes the environment, enhances communication and education, and helps accumulate resources from which we can learn and proceed "over the rainbow." In other words, this new center is a dream come true.

She concluded that the Van Iten videoconferencing room will add to our Asian programs by providing a link to UD. She is proud to work here and witness our dive into the Communications Age, which she substitutes for Information Age. Finally, she thanked all of the people that made this extraordinary building possible, especially Jackaline Baldwin Dunlap and her family.

Sunday Night Live, More than just free food

By: Sarah Morey
Under the Belltower Volume 9 Issue 1

Students returning to UD this year know all too well the feelings of frustration and hunger brought about each Sunday night when the cafeteria is closed. Week after week of cheap pizza and greasy burgers allowed students to add just one more item to the list of things they wish the University would improve. But, this year Campus Ministry has come up with a way to cure those Sunday evening hunger pangs. It's called Sunday Night Live and everyone's invited! Each week a different local church volunteers their time and effort to serve the students at UD a full meal at no expense. Yes, it's true there will be a free meal here on campus every Sunday night. In addition to that, various forms of entertainment will be taking place while you enjoy your supper. SNL is not just for a selected group of people. You don't need to belong to a club to attend. It's for everyone so there's no reason not to go.

When asked what he thought of the latest improvement on campus, Todd Hoefler responded, "It was a good time. The food was good and the entertainment was enjoyable. I'm inviting my roommates next time." Susie Wright had the opportunity to serve her fellow students since her church was first on the list of volunteers. "As a worker it was really exciting to see all the students," she commented. "We were excited to see it happen and as church we can't wait to do it again." Not only were the students impressed with the food, many thought the skit was well done and are eager to see what's coming up next week.

After only two weeks of SNL, the attendance has grown enough that supper will now be served in the cafeteria. So, grab a friend and join us each Sunday might for free food, fun, and fellowship.

A Memory of Adam

I met Adam only once, when he and Alex Neascu flew me to Marshalltown to teach an adjunct course for UD. Adam came along to log some extra hours flying. He was handsome, with clear eyes and close-cropped blonde hair. His language was so precise that I did not realize he was Hungarian by birth until I heard him mention it to Alex. He was enthusiastic and ambitious, 22 years old and looking forward to a bright exciting flying career.

What impressed me most about Adam, was that he was a romantic who deeply appreciated the beauty of the sky. As we were flying above a low layer of dark clouds, staring into the blinding sun, he asked me to look down behind the plane. There, the sun was casting a shadow of the plane on the clouds.

Remembering Adam

By: Jason Burkhart

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you about my best friend, roommate, colleague, fellow pilot and flight instructor, Adam Varga.

We first met at Iowa Lakes Community College in Estherville, IA in 1996, while we were attending a private pilot ground school together. We shared many good times and quickly became best friends. Together we studied, flew airplanes, daily and worked with each other to become the best pilots ever. We strove for perfection, prided ourselves on winning awards at competitions, became professionals, and had a good time sharing our enjoyment of flying.

Returning from our flights each evening we would lower the top on the convertible and cruise around town to relax, visit friends, and make new friends. Adam especially liked taking long drives in my convertible with the top down, the wind blowing through his hair, and the radio cranked. We cruised to Spencer and Spirit Lake and Okoboji together visiting airports, pilots, and viewing airplanes.

As the training progressed and we neared graduation from ILCC, we decided to transfer to the University of Dubuque together and room together as flight instructors for the 1998-99 school year. This provided us with the ability to discuss our students, our trials and tribulations of flight training and to support the aviation program together. We often discussed our students' training progress, our approach to instruction, and our experiences to augment each other's teaching style!

Adam was a very kind and compassionate individual. He openly shared with me his love of aviation. Adam was a person who knew what he enjoyed and kept those things close to himself. He always had goals set and never lost sight of them. He taught people to believe in themselves and instilled confidence in them and their ability to achieve! His spirit and personality made people believe – he exuded an aura of confidence that affected all people around him.

Adam also believed in having fun at what he loved doing. Just being around him made you feel so good. This is what I will always remember about Adam! And I am sure that any of you who had the privilege of knowing him would have felt the same.

So let's not forget what he taught us: Celebrate Adam's positive influence on your life and do not ask why, but thank God for what he granted each of us.

The shadow was circumscribed by a circle of rainbow light that sparkled and shimmered off the vapor. This breathtaking "logo" of a plane surrounded by dancing colors followed us for many miles as we sped over the Iowa countryside. Adam had said that he had seen the phenomenon only a few times and that he loved flying because it always gave him the opportunity, when conditions were right, to search for it again.

For me, hearing of Adam's tragedy was especially poignant, because darkness had fallen on a dreamer whose heart soared when he saw the light. Whenever I see clouds, and especially when the rainbow appears, I will remember him. He was, in the best sense of the idiom, a "chaser of rainbows." May he enjoy forever the beauty of the light his spirit sought.

Days Off

By: Melissa Dix

Under the Belltower Volume 9 Issue 9

Ah yes, it's that crazy time of the school year when schools are calling off school for so many different reasons. I bet you can remember the joy you felt when you got up to find some weather disaster outside. Or how about all of those national holidays like Presidents Day, Martin Luther King Day, and the upcoming Easter? Since this is a crazy time, there are the ever-present teacher workdays that students get off of school for. You know, things like in-services and teacher conferences.

I had the privilege once of going to an in-service at my school. I can say one thing about the experience, I learned that you need to bring something along to work on just to stay awake. From what I can gather, the school is required to have specific in-services to educate and inform its educators, but how many times do these teachers have to hear the same presentation? I do admit that when I was there, the teachers were less formal and actually polite to my low-level position. I guess they're human after all.

Teacher conferences were always a thrill for me, as I'm sure they were for everyone. I could never understand why parents would go every quarter to have a teacher, or teachers, say the same thing about their little student, or students. Basically there are two forms of presentations. There is the "your child is the most wonderful student in my class" approach and the "I feel that your child is not striving to his/her full potential". These, of course, are translated into "your child is a butt-kisser" and "I'm going to pass your child your child because I don't want to deal with them again." Which one were you? Anyway, I bet the teachers continued to emphasize the importance of teacher conferences so that they can have the day off. Granted, they still have to show up at school, but they can just sit around all day with the occasional presentation to a parent. Sounds good to me. Then there is no resistance from the students, who will take the days off as well, and everyone goes home happy.

Library Expands

By: Kim Hoeger
Under The Belltower Volume 9 Issue 10

At the beginning of commencement in May of 1998, there was an announcement made of an addition to library at the University of Dubuque. Charles C. Myers, a life trustee donated a gracious gift of $5 million to the university enabling the reconstruction. The architect, Frye Gillan Molinaro, will begin assisting construction probably towards the end of the summer or early autumn and end 15 months later. During this time much of the library material will be put in storage.

In the new addition there will be a lower level and a main level. The main level will consist primary of books, a circulating desk, computers, and other library necessities. On the lower level retrospective periodicals will be stored by compact stacking which saves twice the library space. In the upper level of Couchman there will a room referred to as Mezzanine. In this room there will be eight enclosed faculty areas where they can store long term research items. The Mezzanine will also be used as a study area, but this is the only room that is not handicap accessible. All new heating and cooling will be installed.

The future facilities will include informal seating; study tables; study carrels, and group study rooms equipped with "computer drops," multiple function computer workstations and multimedia computer workstations; a multimedia laboratory; two seminar rooms; and a classroom equipped with computer workstations and other technologies to enhance teaching. group study rooms and similar facilities are intended to encourage discussion amount students and dialogue between students and faculty. There will be a student lounge into the expanded facility as a way of drawing students into this place of learning and study.

Many of the faculty and students expressed exciting comments when asked about the new library. Joel L. Samuels, Director of Libraries mentioned, "The University of Dubuque has a noble heritage since 1852 and enormous potential for the future, and I am convinced that an excellent library is crucial to our future. The new library will integrate printed books, multimedia material, and electronic resource in a dramatic new environment, encouraging the effective use of these resources.

Carolynne Lathrop, Reference Librarian and Director of Curriculum library said, "We really need the additional space and this is something we've needed a long time. I'm particularly pleased that the curriculum library will be large enough to bring in classes in order to demonstrate and give examples of new material."

Mary Anne Knefel, Reader's Services Librarian commented, "I'm very excited about the library and I think the students are too because they stop and look at the architecture drawings. I feel it will be a very beautiful building."

James McLaughlin replied, "I think it will be an exciting addition to the university."

It's Just A Game

By: Bijal Shah
Under The Belltower Volume 9 Issue 10

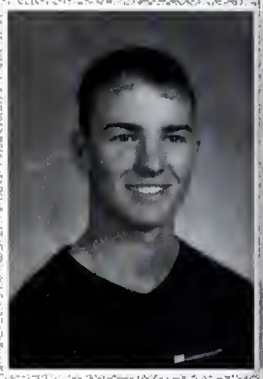

There have been quite a few times in my life in which I found myself feeling hopeless with life. I thought that my only resort was to give up and just end my life altogether, but for some reason I never did. I kept fighting through the obstacles that came along and realized after that things happen for a reason and they happen for us to learn from them. As the days go by in life; hours, minutes, and seconds slowly tick by. Systematically, we go on with our lives, never imagining that at any moment our lives can be drastically altered. However, what happened to me on the night of September 28, 1996, changed my entire outlook on life. It had been a boring and frustrating Saturday afternoon. The weather was dull and algebra homework was nearly impossible.
A blank pile of college applications amusingly stared at me. I needed to get out. I could not deal with junior year and the pressures that came with it. That Saturday night was supposed to be a relief from all the anxiety I had been feeling during the past few weeks. I was going out to dinner with a bunch of close friends. I was looking forward to a night of laughs and conversation to remedy my soul. I was wrong. The dominant topic was college and aspirations. I left the restaurant with a bad feeling in my heart. I was terrified of what the future held for me, and I knew I needed to think.

The hour-long drive gave me time to analyze my goals, dreams, and expectations. I was just thinking of whether or not I should drop algebra when I noticed two teenage boys on bikes, impatiently waiting to cross the street. Just as the light turned green, they decided to cross at a dangerous time, causing the driver in front of me to slam on his brake. As I slowly entered the intersection, I noticed the two boys waiting in the median. Once again, one of the boys went to cross the street, without noticing the black car to his right. At 55 miles per hour, the boy was blown away, thrown in the air like a paper doll. I could only see the reflectors of his bike against the black of the sky. The only sound was the shrill cry of his friend's voice at the death of a loved one. Shaking like a leaf, I called 911. It was as if all life around me had stopped for a long horrifying moment. By the time I hung up, the ambulance was there. More shaken and disturbed than ever, I warily drove home. The next thirty minutes of my thoughts were like none other. This boy, a careless, content teenager would never have the opportunity to do many things in life that bring pleasure. He would never get to play soccer, give his crush a bouquet of flowers, nor tell his mom he lover her. His life was stripped from the loving arms of his family. The boy would never get his acceptance letter from college, nor give a moving speech at graduation. No, because he was in the wrong place at the wrong time. Since that unforgettable night in September, I have focused on what must become of me...I know that life is a game, unpredictable and at many times unfair. The winner is not the one who had the most money or the newest car, but rather the one who savors every moment without regrets or preoccupation. Next time you feel like life is just hopeless and you would rather do nothing, but die, remember that many people lose their lives and it was not their decision. Savor life for what you have, even if things are not the best, at least find a friend, that can help you remember the good things in life. So when ones life is taken away, he will have lost nothing, but earned the prize of contentment...

Volleyball

The Spartan Volleyball team finished the season with a 23-12 overall record and a third place finish in the tough Iowa Conference behind Central and Wartburg. Dubuque received a bid to the NCAA Division III playoffs as well by finishing as the 6th ranked team in the Central Region. The Central region proved to be one of the toughest, if not the toughest, region in Division III this season as the 1st through 5th ranked teams were nationally ranked in the top twenty. Dubuque is proud to have made the tournament field for the third time in the last five years.

It was a great effort by all which allowed Sara Gassmann and Sara Nauman to be named to the Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Conference's 1st team and Janene Doddema to the 2nd team. Gassmann was also named to the prestigious All-Central Region Team.

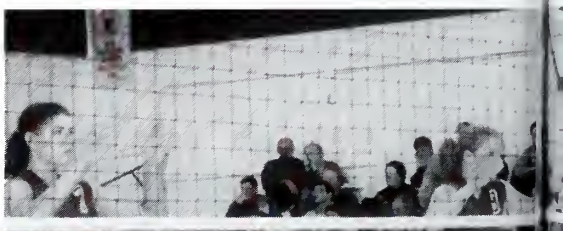

Taking a look ahead, the 1999 season looks bright again, but very challenging as well. The schedule is complete with a number of challenging tournaments. With a good group returning players and some quality recruits, the University of Dubuque will again challenge for the top of the conference and a NCAA Division III playoff bid.

SPARTANS Football

The 1998 Football season was one in which the team showed a great attitude and work ethic that will help them in the future, but the successes on Saturday afternoon were not found. The season was one in which the largest number of Spartans in recent years reported to pre-season camp. The new players to the program came ready to be put to the test in the expanded Iowa Conference as Coe and Cornell joined the league. The Spartan's first contest was against the number one ranked Division III school, Simpson College, and was followed by four other top fifteen ranked programs in the country.

1998 U.D. Football Seniors included: Shawn Tate (QB), Chuck Leonard (TE), Jake Rankin (OT), Eric Ray (DB), Ron Egan (LB), Aaron Wauters (LB), Dave Isenberg (OG), John Wiese (DE), Dan Edmonds (TE), Marty Serauskis (FB). This group of players did a great job of setting a level of commitment to excellence that will be used to continue to build the program in the future.

Left: Spartan, Eric Ray tackles a Beaver as Josh Reynolds comes for assistance. Ray ended his senior year with a total of 71 tackles.

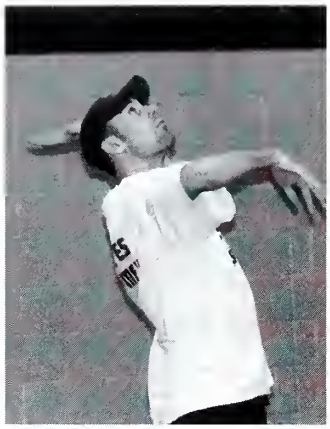

Shawn Tate, quaterback, calls out the offensive strategy against Simpson College. He set eight school records throughtout his career and finished 29th in NCAA DivisionIII history.

Flag Football, Volleyball

Below: Lucas Luensman of the Champs serves the volleyball to the Foxy All-Stars in the Semi-Finals.

Nate Kehoe, Student Director of Intramurals, worked hard throughtout the year to give students the opportunity to participate in a variety activities. You would see Nate on a daily basis carrying statistics and organizing the games for the week. Nate worked hard to increase participation in all events and kept everyone informed on individual and team standings.

Scoring two points, Tim MacArthur drives hard to the hoop.

Left: Junior Sonya Reinets and Freshmen LeKeya Hoosman and Katie Meyer guard the lane to make it harder for the Knights of Wartburg to score.

Women's Basketball

Under first year coach, Kevin Giese, the women's basketball team improved in every statistical category. The freshman dominated team has set the foundation for future success. Jen Corwin is the lone graduating senior.Bobbi Endress who missed the season with an ACL injury, returns next year along with Sonya Reinets, Margaret Bormann and Carrie Volk to make up next years senior class that bring valuable experience and maturity to this young team.

Freshmen Greta Pemsl and LeKeya Hoosman were the leading scorers and rebounders this season. Other freshman gaining valuable experience this year were Kate Wright, Katie Meyer, Katie Oliver, Jordan Hamsen and Jen Layman.

Men's BASKETBALL

The 1998-99 Mens Basketball season ended on a positive note with a victory over Cornell College. The Spartans completed their season with a 7-17 record, despite losing their first 9 games. The season did show a lot of promise for the future. Even though the first eight games were away and 3 key players were injured, the Spartans had some great performances from both upper and under classman. After the new year, the mens team had a record of 7 wins and 8 losses and played their best basketball of the year.

The future looks very promising for the Spartans. With two Seniors Casey Grimme and DewShannon Holmes graduating, the Spartans return a group of men ready to take the basketball program to the next level. Just Do It Spartans!

Track& Field

While freshmen Justin Mellmann and Greta Pemsl, along with sophomore Pat Cleary, 10,000 meter run at 33:31.98 and Angie Horman, discus thrower tossed 136'8", fared exceptionally well at the 1999 Iowa Conference Track & Field Championships, it was junior sprinter Greg Ortberg who stole the show.

The two-time 1999 indoor All-American amazed the fans and competitors at Buena Vista University. Ortberg was voted the Iowa Conference MVP by claiming individual victories in teh 110 meter high hurdles as well as the 100 and 200 meter dashes. Not only did the Manchester, Iowa native win the events, but he established three new UD school records and broke the Iowa Conference mark in the 100 at 10.66 seconds.

Congratulations to all Track and Field athletes!

Student Government Association

Student Govenment Association exists for students and organizations who may have questions or ideas to express to the University. This year's President, Troy Smith and Vice-President, Agnes Kress spent many long days and nights listening, answering and voicing many students concerns about the changes happening on campus. The questions raised came from the student representative.

SGA receives students' activities fees and allocates the money to other student organizations on a per need basis. They also sponsor Homecoming, Monday Night Feasts during Finals, and Senior Party. The activities were fun this year. Next year, will prove to be another exciting and challenging year for SGA. Thanks for all of the hard work and if you have any questions next year, stop by the SGA office downstairs in the Underground.

UNIVERSITY PROGRAM COUNCIL

University Program Council's theme for the 1998-99 school year was "Get Colorful With UPC." UPC made t-shirts with this theme on them and gave them away at different events throughout the year. Activities sponsored by UPC this year included nights at the movies, monthly bowling nights, Games on the Quad, and the intense Euchre Tournament. Some of our popular events involved amazing hypnotists, hysterical comedians, and incredible musicians, but our biggest events of the year are ones that were the most memorable. These events were: Let's Make A Deal, where all of you dressed in crazy costumes right out of the TV show; Spring Fling Week, where students went back in time to win daily prizes and compete in physical events like the vertical rock climb; and, of course, swinging the night away at the Founder's Day Ball. UPC had a blast planning and running events for all of the UD students this year. UPC is run by a group of your dedicated classmates and advised by Mark Heitkamp, Activities Director. These students worked hard to make this year one of the most successful years UPC has had. We are all excited to return next year and the only thing we ask is that next year is even better. A special thanks goes out to all of those people who helped make this year all it could be.

Zeta Phi

The 1998-99 school year was a landmark year for the Zeta Phi Sorority. We celebrated our 75th year of sisterhood! The sorority was founded on May 2, 1923 and has been going strong since. Our colors are blue and white and our mascot is the bunny. Our Homecoming Tea turned into a 75th celebration and we enjoyed the time spent with our alumni. It was a wonderful way to look back and see how our sorority has grown and changed in 75 years and the traditions that have been passed down through the years. Initiation this year added three new members and one new honorary. This year was exciting, but we are looking ahead and can't wait to take Zeta Phi into the year 2000!

Phi Omicron

The Phi Omicron Fraternity was founded in 1926, and will soon be celebrating its 75th Anniversary. This year the Phi-O's added three new members to their group including Dan Maline, Justin Hart, and Brett Knox. With a total of eight active members this organization is looking towards the future with youth on its side.

Four of the current eight members are graduating and will not be with us next year. We would like to wish the best of luck to graduating seniors Chuck Leonard, Marty Serauskis, Dave Coles and Dan Edmonds. Thanks for the memories!
